

STEAM PUNK FIREARMS YE

The origin of firearms is a fantasy campaign is a mysterious and controversial matter. Some credit dwarves, others blame the kobolds, while many consider them infernal devices. Many races have adopted firearms into their armies with grave results in war. The boom of cannon and rattle of rifle fire are now as common as the clash of metal and twang of bowstring on the battlefield.

Firearm (Group): This group includes all weapons that use gunpowder to fire a projectile other than artillery pieces. Simple firearms are smoothbore. Military firearms are rifled. As a proficient user, you are able to maintain your firearm, clear jams, and aim properly. For simplicity, all firearm bullets are interchangeable (except for the BB Rifle and Hand Cannon). Any shooter not proficient in the firearm you are using takes a STANDARD action to reload. Anyone with the alchemy feat can make gunpowder. Firearms perform slightly better than bows and crossbows, but are heavier, more difficult to reload, and more expensive to use. All powers, feats, and rules applicable to "crossbows" also apply to firearms. Simple firearms are class weapons for rogues.

Big Bore Rifle

The big bore rifle is exceptionally long version of the military long rifle. It fires massive brass spheres (double the cost and weight of ordinary lead bullets) that are warped into the rifle grooves inside the barrel a spun for superior range and accuracy. Unlike a normal rifle this “overlong” weapon must be braced against the ground before firing or the shooter loses any weapon proficiency bonus. Fortunately, it is equipped with a built in swine feather (a long metal rod) that can be planted on the ground as a “minor action” before firing. It requires superior training and is only used by big game hunters and military snipers.

Blunderbuss

The blunderbuss is a two-handed firearm with a wide, sometimes flared barrel. It is can be loaded lead shot, nails, or even coins. The wide disbursement pattern of shot increases the chance of multiple strikes on a target. Treat all ranged attacks from this weapon as if they are AREA ATTACKS (Scatter effect). The funnel mouth makes buckshot easier to load, but adversely affect the weapon's range.

Hand Cannon

A hand cannon is a brass smoothbore cannon used to hurl cast iron cannon balls or round stones of up to one pound in weight and fired from the hip (illustrated on title page). It requires a minimum strength of 14 to fire with proficiency bonus.

Carbine

A carbine is a short muzzle-loaded, black powder rifle. Cavalry prefers this weapon over the rifle for its compact size and weight. It can be used by a "small" character two handed.

Dueling pistol

A dueling pistol is superior to a smoothbore pistol due to its rifled barrel and improved iron sights, which gives it greater accuracy and improved range. Dueling pistols are generally sold in pairs due to their intended purpose, duels of honor.

Musket

A musket is a muzzle-loaded, smoothbore black powder handgun, which is intended to be fired with two hands.

Pistol

A pistol is a simple black powder weapon fired by a spring flintlock mechanism. It is about one to two feet in length and can only be hidden under a robe, greatcoat or similarly voluminous garments. It can also be used as a simple club.

Pistol, Holdout

A holdout pistol is a miniaturized version of a normal pistol. It has reduced range and damage, but can be easily concealed in ordinary clothing and can be fired in your off-hand. In addition, if it is used in a ranged "sneak attack" it does not provoke an opportunity attack from an adjacent target.

Rifle

The rifle has longer range and greater accuracy than a musket due to the groves inside the barrel that spin the lead bullet. A rifle requires more training and maintenance than a musket, and is mostly used by hunters and elite military units. A rifle can be converted into a simple spear by screwing a dagger, hilt first, into the rifle's muzzle (standard action to add/remove).

FIREARM AMMUNITION

Lead Bullets

Firearm bullets have the same cost and weight as sling bullets. Cost: 1gp for 20. Weight: 5lbs

Powder Horn

A powder horn is water tight and carries enough loose black powder for ten pistol shots, five musket/rifle shots, and one hand cannon shot. Cost: 5gp per horn. Weight: 2lbs when full.

Powder Keg

A powder keg is a water tight barrel filled with black powder. It has enough loose powder to fill 10 powder horns or fire a hand cannon ten times. Black powder burns fiercely when dry and produces thick smoke, but is only explosive when packed tightly. Cost: 50gp per keg. Weight: 20lbs when full.

Alchemical Ammunition:

Instead of altering the bullet, an alchemical gunpowder charge provides an alchemical effect. Creating this special gunpowder doubles the cost of an ordinary alchemical compound. Alchemical firearm ammunition is usually packaged in sealed wax paper envelope with enough powder for one shot.

MAGICAL FIREARM ENHANCEMENTS

A firearm can utilize any magical enchantment available to the “crossbow” weapon group. In addition, there is several enchantments available only to firearms.

Gun Blade - Level 1+

This pistol is fused with a sword. The barrel of the firearm is parallel with the metal blade

Level 1: +1 = 400gp

Level 6: +2 = 2000gp

Weapon: Firearms (Pistols Only)

Enhancement: Attack and Damage Rolls

Critical: +1d6 damage per plus

Property: Your pistol can also be used as a sword. Any light or heavy blade is available except for thrown weapons (daggers, shuriken, etc.). Both weapons suffer a -1 penalty to attack rolls due to the odd balance of the weapon. The magic enhancement bonus applies to both firearm ranged attacks and blade melee attacks.

Double Barrel Firearm- Level 2+

This firearm has a pair of barrels and triggers. The barrels are either side-to-side or over-under.

Level 2: +1 = 520gp

Level Advancement: At Level 14 and 19: Burst 2, At Level 23 and 28: Burst 3
